Valerie Glenn -> All Participants: glennv@vcu.edu

Jen` Kirk -> All Participants: persistent identifiers =PIDs

Dominique Hallett -> All Participants: yes on purl training - that would be great

Mary A. Ries -> All Participants: hard to hear

Donald Sensabaugh -> All Participants: Very quiet.

Rick Mikulski -> All Participants: sorry for the sound issue, all!

Laurie Hall -> All Participants: <https://fdlp.gov/instruction/purls>

Jen` Kirk -> All Participants: Thank you to the Working Group chairs and members for their work this year.

Tekla Slider -> All Participants: +1 Jen

Charlie (she-her) Amiot -> All Participants: standing applause

Helen Keremedjiev -> All Participants: +1

Gwyneth Crowley -> All Participants: Your hard work is evident!

Lori Thornton -> All Participants: Applause!

Amy Laub -> All Participants: +1 Shari

Charlie (she-her) Amiot -> All Participants: Nothing new from me. Still concerned about Selective participation in the face of increasing digital demands that are less and less in alignment with institutional goals.

Aimee Quinn -> All Participants: AH, I see Shari.. Thank you for your clarification.

Scott Matheson -> All Participants: Facilitator vs. Subject matter expert.

Charlie (she-her) Amiot -> All Participants: Yes!

Charlie (she-her) Amiot -> All Participants: I'm concerned about how some campuses don't allow outside users on the network.

Charlie (she-her) Amiot -> All Participants: It gets harder and harder to provide that networked access.

Elizabeth Williams -> All Participants: We are a small library. Don't have staff.

Charlie (she-her) Amiot -> All Participants: And I think a lot of academic libraries have enjoyed shutting down during the pandemic and want to stay that way and could if not for FDLP.

Rob Mead -> All Participants: Court libraries need to collect the law.

Elisabeth Garner -> All Participants: We're an academic library and we welcome community users to use the collection when we are open to the public, usually up until 10:00 p.m. on weeknights

James Jacobs -> All Participants: I'm able to argue with my admin for public access based on FDLP legislative requirements. I'm at a private university but we allow public users into the library

Andrea Craley -> All Participants: We are a community college that allows community borrowers in the library when we are open

James Jacobs -> All Participants: and that public access includes both physical docs and computers/network access while in the library

Lori Thornton -> All Participants: Charlie- is part of this issue being able to access the catalog and other electronic material?

Charlie (she-her) Amiot -> All Participants: Arguing only goes so far when an Administration has made a decision.

Kelly Smith -> All Participants: +1 James

Charlie (she-her) Amiot -> All Participants: @Lori, yes, like providing GovInfo access. Yes, we do it now. But going all digital is bound to change things.

James Jacobs -> All Participants: Charlie perhaps you could have the SuDoc contact your administration to remind them of their legislative requirements

Ronnie Joiner -> All Participants: We have limited space in our building, and the physical document collection takes up quite a bit of space and isn't used as much as the other collections. It also costs us to add digital materials to the ILS because we share our ILS with other libraries.

Andrea Craley -> All Participants: I am determined not to have us not leave the program on my watch - been in since 1967. I will evolve however I need to. We are the only community college select in our state, and 1 or only 2 community college selectives in our regional.

Christopher Brown -> All Participants: U. of Denver is a private institution. I often have to argue for services to the public, including computer access. We allow govdocs users to use computers without paying the $5 fee. Also, we allow research consultations for the public seeking govinfo.

Andrea Craley -> All Participants: correcting typos...1 of (nor or) 2 community college selectives in our region.

Helen Keremedjiev -> All Participants: Circling back to a prior session's chat thread from today~38#x2026; If interested, there's currently the GPO FDLP LibGuides Project, showing six prototype guides for public comment until May 19th. We'd love your feedback!! Here's the link to the project: <https://libguides.fdlp.gov/prototype/home> And please share the link with your colleagues and patrons!
